

BRILLIANT PROGRAM BY SYMPHONY GROUP

Hyeckha Club Culminates Season by Presenting Famous Orchestra.

By Far the Best Musical Organization Here; Soloist Charming.

(BY W. R. GUIBERSON)

That the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra is one of the greatest musical organizations in the world there is no doubt and their performance Saturday afternoon and evening fully established that fact in the minds of all who heard them. The direction of Mr. Oberholfer is little less than wonderful and each note of the music seems to emanate from the depths of his soul and float out in rhythmic beauty, so perfectly absolute in his control. In him may be found a distinct originality of style unequalled by any other conductor before the American public. His ability to turn the orchestra into an accompanying body when the soloist appears is truly wonderful. The most remarkable feature of his conducting is his apparent indifference and entire lack of exertion, void of any special action, just plain conducting but with a seeming connection with every instrument as if he himself played it.

Singing Chorus

The singing of Leonora Allen in the afternoon was truly a charm. Endowed with a voice of wondrous power and richness and a charm of personality all her own, she held the audience spellbound, entranced with the beauty of her voice. While Miss Allen's voice is marvellously rich and resonant in character, it has underneath it a mellowness which is clearly manifest in the softer tones. At the conclusion of the aria "Softly Singing," from "Der Freischütz," by Weber, she was recalled by an audience which had been developed to the highest pitch of enthusiasm and gracefully responded with an encore, which was sung in English.

The announcement that Louis Gravenre would be unable to sing on account of serious illness was met with general disappointment, but only for the moment, for when Gustave Holmquist, one of the greatest basses of the day, began that most beautiful aria "She Alone Charming My Sadness," by Gounod, the audience forgot Gravenre, "Eri tu," and thought only of the singer before them. His rendition of this impressive number was masterfully done, and won tumultuous applause; he responded to an enthusiastic encore with that ever beautiful, "Sweet Evening Star," from Tannhauser.

Cello Soloist at His Best

One of the most charming features of the afternoon program was the playing of the cello soloist, Cornelius Van Vleet. His "G major" concerto, by Servais, was most exquisitely done, displaying wonderful technique and beauty of tone throughout. He responded to the continued applause and played a most beautiful selection, accompanied by the harp.

It would be hard to choose any particular number of the orchestra's afternoon program, inasmuch as each one carried with it some distinct feature of its own, but the two movements of "Dvorak's" symphony No. 6 and "Valse Triste" from the drama "Kuliena" by Sibelius, were the most enjoyed.

In "Valse Triste" we find one of the most popular of the Finnish master's lesser compositions. It is one number from the incidental music to a drama by the composer's brother-in-law, Arvid Järnefelt, "Kuliena," meaning death, and illustrating the story of a dying woman rises from her bed to dance with the spirits of departed friends. At the height of her frenzy someone knocks at the door, the woman strikes, and falls to her death. One could almost see her as she played, so realistic was Mr. Oberholfer's interpretation.

Play Rhapsody No. 2.

It would not be fair to pass without mentioning that beautiful prelude to "Lohengrin" and the "Rhapsody No. 2," both masterpieces and exquisitely rendered. In the latter Henry J. Williams, harpist, displayed the master of his instrument that he is, in this original harp cadenza.

The opening number for the evening, Tchaikovsky's symphony in F minor, No. 4 op. 35, was to say the least, wonderful. The opening theme depicts fate, the power that thwarts our aspirations toward happiness. It is overwhelming, invincible. We resign ourselves to it and the feeling grows stronger and we dream fanciful dreams.

Miss Cooper Sing in English.

Miss Cooper in "O Don Fatate" delighted a most highly appreciative audience with her rich, mellow contralto voice, and responded to an encore with a very beautiful selection which she sang in English. She possesses a very charming personality which, together with her remarkable voice, won the hearts of her hearers. The smoothness and flow of her voice wholly beautiful and of unusual quality. Each note was round and pure; each easily, naturally produced, and the diction irreproachable.

Mr. Czernowky surely upheld his reputation as an artist in his interpretation of "Concerto for Violin, No. 2 in D minor," by Wieniawski, and responded to an enthusiastic encore, accompanied by the harp. It will be recalled that he was last night, not satisfied with that beautiful encore, "A Message," the audience insisted on more.

His singing of "Celeste Aja" was thrilling and full of such beautiful tone quality and sentiment as to present almost the scene wherein Rhadames sings it to his Aida.

Great Achievement.

The Hyeckha Club should feel proud of their achievement. Surely it is the greatest achievement in their history, for surely it was the greatest organization of musicians ever presented before the people of Tulsa. And, while the patronage was fairly good, it was not one-half of what it really deserved and should have been. It is because of the lack of musical taste, or in the general whirl of prosperity, lack of time.

Sunday afternoon the orchestra plays again in Convention hall. The program will be a popular one and the prices will range from 50c to $1. There should be at least two thousand people there.

ANOTHER FOR TULSA.

The following story is from "The Diapason", the greatest publication in the world devoted to organ music:

Clarence Eddy has returned to his home at San Francisco from one of the most successful of his many tours—a matter in which no doubt he holds a world record. He was heard at Florida, Georgia, New England, New York, Oklahoma and other sections, and everywhere received ovations from large audiences, proof positive of Mr. Eddy's ever fresh magnetism in personality and performance. At Tulsa, Oklahoma, where Mr. Eddy played the municipal organ which the joy and pride of the growing city, the enthusiasm reached its climax and the leading dailies gave columns on the front pages to the performance.

Mr. Eddy is a living refutation of the theory that people do not care for organ recitals. At the Thompson Avenue Congregational church in Brooklyn, for instance, there was an audience of more than a thousand people while a terrific snowstorm raged. Those of us who can't get people to come out and hear us have something to ponder in the foregoing.

CITY MANAGEMENT CHANGES TUESDAY

"New Deal" Officials Will Have Charge in Every Department.

LUCAS POLICE CHIEF

Business Administration Is Promised by All Incoming Officials.

Tuesday morning the official affairs of this city will be taken from the hands of the present administration and placed in the keeping of J. H. Simmons as mayor, A. L. Funk as police commissioner, A. D. Walker as street commissioner, A. W. Brink as finance commissioner, C. S. Youngman as water commissioner, and Frank Newkirk as auditor.

On that day the administration of the city devolves upon these men, who in their campaign, pledged their efforts and support to a businesslike and efficient handling of the city's business. Yesterday they reiterated their statements that they would go into office to serve the people during their term of office, to conduct a businesslike management of the affairs of Tulsa and leave at the expiration of their terms a complete record of the affairs of the city, instead of one which will necessitate months of work by the succeeding administration to clarify and untangle.

One Appointment

"I have made but one appointment," said Mayor-elect Simmons yesterday. "That is Ed Lucas, chief of police."

"There is not a better man for the place," was the expression of A. L. Funk, commissioner of police. "Lucas has had practical experience in peace officer work," he continued, "and he will fit into the place as well as any other man could do. We are going into the work to carry out our promise to the people and we mean to make every promise good."

Picks Assistant

A. W. Brink, new commissioner of finance, when called by telephone, declared that his department would try to get the books of the office in working shape as soon as possible and that his effort to make the administration of affairs there as businesslike as possible would be made. "I have picked but one assistant for my office," he continued. "That will be W. E. Andres, who will become my chief clerk. I intend keeping the present force for some time. I will investigate the department and will make such changes as I think do not add to the efficiency of the office and will replace them with more capable persons."

C. S. Youngman, water commissioner, predicted a businesslike administration and will co-operate with the other city officials in giving the people of Tulsa the kind of government they desired for with their ballots. "I have no doubt," he continued, "that this sentiment is expressed by Frank Newkirk, newly selected city auditor, who entered office under a great handicap as a result of the recent election, and that there shows the funds to be in a bad shape and which declares that the records there are in a difficult condition to straighten."

GORE WOULD FIGHT WITH MORAL FORCE

Advocates Arbitration at American Academy of Social Science

PHILADELPHIA, May 1.—Senator Gore of Oklahoma, speaking Saturday before the American Academy of Political and Social Science, declared that the United States should continue to rely upon moral rather than upon military force and to dedicate itself to the preservation of humanity, the idea and ideals of peace, arbitration and international justice.

The cause of international peace, he emphasized, never stood in such sore need of friends as at the present time. Dr. M. J. Bonn, professor of the University of Munich, Bavaria, and a close friend of the German emperor, took exception to the remarks of other speakers who intimated that there will be a menace in the future of this country because of her aspirations in Brazil. Such ideas, he said, would have been weighed in the balance long ago when there was a large German emigration, which, he said, has come to a standstill.

Big Money for Rivers. WASHINGTON, May 1.—A five-year improvement and flood control program for the Mississippi and Sacramento rivers is provided for in a bill favorably reported to the house today by the flood control committee. It appropriates $5,000,000 for the Mississippi and $5,000,000 for the Sacramento river work during the five-year period.

TULSA TO BE HUB OF INTERURBANS

Chamber of Commerce
Holds Mass Meeting
Wednesday Night.

MAY ACCEPT OFFER

Columbus to Tulsa Line Is Now Likely to Become a Reality.

Tulsa is destined to take her place alongside the interurban centers of the country, standing shoulder to shoulder as a hub of many radiating traction lines with Los Angeles of the Pacific coast or Indianapolis of the north central states.

This is the prophecy of J. R. Rose, president of the Oklahoma & Interstate railroad who, Friday evening, presented to a special committee of the Tulsa Chamber of Commerce a proposition whereby this city will become the southern terminal of a line, extending to the north and east through Oklahoma and into Columbus and Joplin, Mo.

Following the presentation of the proposition by Mr. Rose, the committee went into an executive session and after a lengthy discussion tentatively accepted the plan as presented by the railroad president, subject to a ratification of the project at a mass meeting to be held in the Chamber of Commerce assembly hall on the night of May 3.

Goes to Miami.

As presented by Mr. Rose, the projected line will pass northward from this city for fifty miles, to Bartlesville, and then eastward for a distance of 12 miles to Miami, opening up those rich trade territories to the Tulsa merchant and business man.

The proposed line will then pass northward from Miami into Kansas on a line between Miami and Columbus, making the latter city the northern terminal of the new line.

Mr. Rose's proposition as tentatively accepted by the committee calls for the erection within the first limits of this city an elaborate and extensive terminal building, built along the modern terminal plans. The plans also call for the erection of up-to-date car barns and shops, either adjacent, to the city limits, with facilities for building and repairing a large number of cars.

It was also agreed by the committee and Mr. Rose that the property secured for the new line and its terminal and shops should be placed in escrow, to be turned over to the owner of the line only when the first regular service has been established, and cars from this city to Nowata, a distance of 86 miles to the northeast of this city, as the line is now projected.

Right-of-Way.

The right-of-way for the line is to be secured through the efforts of the citizens of Tulsa from this city to Collinsville, the builders of the line binding themselves to procure the property needed for this purpose from Collinsville to Columbus.

The agreement also provides that the line shall be used as a means of transporting mail, express, baggage and passengers from Columbus to Tulsa and all points in between. It also is possible that the general offices of the company will be in Tulsa, probably in the terminal building which will be built to harmonize with the most modern of Tulsa's office buildings.

The committee, in drafting the tentative agreement, also provided that all monies procured for the construction of the line, the right-of-way, to be held by the Tulsa interests until actual work had been started on the line and the terminal, before being turned over to the parties actually building the line.

In discussing the projected line, Secretary Tibbume of the Chamber of Commerce stated yesterday that this was one of the greatest propositions now confronting Tulsa.

Will Be a Hub.

"It is but the first of a series of interurban lines which will be secured for Tulsa, making Tulsa the hub of the series. The proposed line will open up one of the greatest trade territories in this section of the United States and will penetrate the richest mining, milling and farming section of the middle west, giving this city a greatly increased trade territory, served by a fast means of transportation for freight, mail, baggage and passengers," he said.

"After we have completed the arrangements for the building of this line we are going to secure others to the south, the north, the east and branches which will give Tulsa the heart of the network of these lines which will make it a great interurban center."

WILSON CAN'T WIN, DECLARES TULSAN

Local Doctor Gathered Good Information While in the East.

"Throughout the east there is an almost unanimous opinion that Wilson will never be returned to the White House," says Doctor Paul R. Brown, who returned last week from a month's visit in Washington, New York and other eastern points.

"I talked with prominent Democrats," he said, "who believe that any man the Republicans nominate will defeat Wilson. They seem to believe that Champ Clark would be a stronger man than Wilson, but Clark declares emphatically that he will not be a candidate if Wilson's name is presented to the St. Louis convention."

Doctor Brown, who was an army surgeon in the Spanish-American war, was fortunate enough to be in the presence of the president during the session of the house and senate when President Wilson addressed that body on the German submarine question. "While the galleries were crowded," he said in speaking of the event,

"the members of congress seemed to take only a passive interest in the address, and a casual stranger could not see that anything unusual was happening."

"However," he continued, "everybody in Washington considers the German question an extremely serious one, and the prevailing opinion is that Germany cannot satisfy the demands of this nation unless she agrees to absolutely abandon her method of submarine warfare."

Doctor Brown also had the pleasure of attending the opening baseball game in Washington.

"Walter Johnson," he said, "made the Yankees look like bush leaguers. He is going better than ever this year and to my mind is the greatest pitcher that ever lived."

UNIVERSAL TRAINING FOR PREPAREDNESS

CHICAGO, April 29.—The declaration by Theodore Roosevelt in his address Saturday at the banquet of the Illinois Bar association that the ultimate answer to the question of preparedness in this country must be universal training was greeted with a storm of cheers. Colonel Roosevelt visited the city and made the demonstration and declared that it put heart into him and that he would "go out to preach that doctrine with his head up and with increased confidence."

REPUBLICANS HELD TWO BIG MEETINGS

Flying Squadron Interests
Voters at Bixby and Skiatook.

REGISTRATION ISSUE

A. A. Small Summons a Crowd at Bixby by Giving War Whoops.

A stiff gale which blew with fierce velocity did not deter the Republican "flying squadron" from invading Bixby Saturday afternoon on schedule time and to sound a warning to Republicans to be sure and seek out their precinct registrars sometime between May 1 and 10 and register.

Arriving at Bixby the squadron found the citizens in the stores afraid to venture out in the dense whirlpools of dust which the wind sent scurrying down the street. After waiting some time for the speakers to subside A. A. Small, chairman of the county central committee and leader of the clan which has invaded every nook and corner of the county to urge to the voters to register, arrived in a mobile and after giving a few war whoops about a hundred ventured out to hear the speeches.

Some members of the crowd took issue with the speakers and declared it was not necessary for them to register. For answer Small called on several Democrats who stood nearby and they backed out of the crowd. If any voter should fail to register properly during the first ten days of May he would lose his vote for four years.

The squadron was well pleased with the result of its first trip. At Bixby and Skiatook they had accomplished much good.

Last night a big open-air meeting was held at Skiatook and a large crowd surrounded the automobile in which the speakers stood while talking.

CITY NEWS IN BRIEF

DR. DANIEL W. WHITE has returned to Tulsa from two weeks at the bedside of his mother, Mrs. John W. White, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

THE ANNUAL picnic of the Sunday school conducted by the Salvation army will be held at Sand Springs park next Saturday afternoon.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS and appointment of the humane agent and his assistants will be on the docket for the regular meeting of the humane society, which will be held Friday night in the courthouse.

THE WOMAN'S benefit association of the Macedonia hall held an all-session today at the Knights of Pythias hall. The session will begin at 9 o'clock in the forenoon and last all day. The ladies will bring their lunches and sewing, and an enjoyable social session is anticipated.

COUNTY REGISTRAR T. L. Wallace called his forty deputy registrars to the courthouse Saturday morning in the room used by the county commissioners in the courthouse. The purpose of the meeting was to talk over the registration which begins Monday and continues until May 10. Each deputy was furnished with his equipment to carry on his work.

WILLIAM J. JUNKENS, who has been manager of J. C. W. Jenkins Sons' hardware company here for the past two years, spent last week in Kansas City owing to the illness of his mother, at which place he will make his future home, having resigned his management of the local store in favor of A. J. Cripe, formerly salesman for the Kansas City establishment.

WORKMEN GRADING along the Sand Springs railway west of the city's waterworks plant constructing a second roadbed, unearthed Saturday a large bone, said to have been more than five feet in length. It was thought to be a remaining part of some animal that lived long ago, and will be sent to the Smithsonian institute at Washington to ascertain the size of the beast it once inhabited.

IT'S "HIP" TIGER TIME IN GEORGIA

Anti-sipping provisions serve to close the locker clubs, beer saloons and other places of liquor by the more influential social organizations after May 1.

Virtually all the clubs had purchased stocks in the past few days and the provisions have caused a change of feeling on the part of many representatives. Some administration leaders think the house might now be brought to accept the 250,000 men provision, should the conferees fail to agree.
